THE HOME NEWS.

We hope those who "love cold weather" have had their fill this time.

Don't forget the valentine party at Baptist church parsonage tomorrow night.

Judge A. D. Ford has posted advertisements calling for bids on repairing the turnpikes. There ought to be a law requiring this work published in a newspaper, where everybody could see it.

Still in the Ring.

I will open one of the best line of samples, for suits ever brought to Lancaster, about March 1st. Fits guaranteed. Prices as low as any high grade goods can be sold. M. D. Hughes.

A Sweet Theft.

Policeman Murphy, of Lexington, arrested and brought here Andy Beazley, who is charged with stealing three dozen jars of preserves from a party near Bryantville. This is a sweet state of affairs.

Better Tell Him.

If Mat Siler meets you at night and hollers "Who's That?" you had better tell him. He is on the street all night and visits each store and office on his list at least once an hour. Fire and burglars stand little show in Lancaster now, as Siler and Turner pace the streets and alleys all night.

Ornaments.

The Public Square has been greatly beautified by the piling of a lot of rocks around the park fence. This addition to the looks of the Square is a great improvement, and will doubtless succeed in getting another suit against the town when someone drives into it. A few more old rattletrap wagons should be stowed in the Square now, to make things complete.

Would Make A Good One.

A great many good things are being said about Clarence Woods in favor of his being selected by Senator James R. McCreary as private secretary. It would be hard to find one better fitted for the place, nor one who will give it more faithful attention. If Mr. McCreary appoints Clarence, many Lancaster friends will say "Amen."

Don't forget the K. P. meeting tomorrow night.

The date for Old Fiddlers Contest at Nicholasville, is March 17, instead of Feb. 17, as stated in last issue. It's going to be the biggest and best ever given.

Danville Church.

The handsome new Baptist church at Danville, built at a cost of $25,000, was occupied for the first time Sunday and the pastor, Rev. H. A. Sumrell, has arranged a program of dedicatory services lasting throughout the week.

Appointed Administrator.

Mr. George T. Higginbotham has been appointed administrator of his brother's estate, and an advertisement elsewhere in this issue announces that he will proceed to close out the immense stock of hardware, etc., at cost. The deceased left in addition to this stock of goods, three fine farms, containing probably eight hundred acres. He left no will. W. McC. Johnston has been retained as attorney to wind up the estate.

Stanford Court.

Journal:—There were 305 cattle at A B Florence's pens and all sold but 42. Good yearlings and two-year-olds brought about 4c and butcher stuff 3 to 3c. Heifers were slow. At I. M. Bruce's there were 350, and most of them changed hands. Some extra good yearlings brought close to 5c by the head. A bunch sold at 4c by the pound. Heifers sold at 3 to 4c and butcher stuff at 2 1/2 to 3c. Some mules sold at $60 to $125 but horses were very dull, only plugs being offered.

Church Entertainment.

The entertainment to be given at the Baptist church tomorrow, Friday, evening, promises to draw a large crowd. There will be a valentine post office, taffy candy stands, an old-fashioned spelling bee, and many other attractions which insure a pleasant evening. You needn't enter the spelling bee unless you so choose. A large number of boxes containing good edibles will be sold to the highest bidder. The entertainment will be given at the parsonage, and you should go and thus help a noble cause.

The Weather.

The oldest inhabitant has gone in his hole and pulled the hole in after him, the present spell of severe weather completely outwitting him. Since the big sleet some weeks ago, there has been no let up in the cold, frequent snows adding to the ice and wind which constantly made out-door work almost impossible. There has been much suffering among the poor people, and stock of all kinds. The farmers have, as a rule, prepared for winter, and nearly all have sheds or other protection for stock. This has saved many, and proved that a little money spent this way is a good-paying investment. The local coal dealers have been remarkably successful in keeping a supply on hand, and we have missed the "famine" generally experienced every winter. An inch of snow fell Tuesday night.

Our Own Horn Blows For Once.

In the last issue of THE RECORD we had twelve letters from various parts of Garrard county. We will wager a new hat that no country paper can show up anything this good in quantity or quality of matter. Add what we had in the "town" news columns to these letters, and no county paper can show up as much local matter in a week's time. It was all purely local news too, no harem-scarem stuff from all quarters of the globe, but just what a country paper should have—the "home" news. We have the best correspondents to be found in each locality, and each one is a hustler, too. A local paper always flies higher than it can roost when it attempts to publish everything that happens in the whole world. We print only the home news, and if you want to know what's going on in Europe, Asia or Africa, take a daily paper.

Death of Col. Henderson.

After an illness of several weeks, Col. John Henderson died at the boarding house of Mrs. Pollard, on Stanford street, in this city, Thursday at noon. Col. Henderson was originally a citizen of Garrard, but moved to Madison some years since, engaging in business in business in Richmond part of the time. His health began to fail, and he had been losing ground for a year or more. He was a man well-known all over the country, and at one time was one of the wealthiest citizens of Garrard. He leaves a daughter, Miss Alice, who is one of the teachers at the Graded School, and one of the most highly-respected and accomplished young ladies in the city. Her devotion to her father in his long illness was beautiful, and her untiring efforts in his behalf will certainly be rewarded in the great hereafter. The remains of Col. Henderson were interred at the Lancaster Cemetery Friday afternoon, after services at the grave.

Prompt and Just Punishment.

Last week, a negro assaulted Miss Della Powell, a prominent young lady, near her home in Jessamine county, dragging her from a buggy on the public highway, just before dark. The negro was taken to jail, and next morning the young lady fully identified him. A crowd (not a "mob," as some papers reported) took him from the officers and hanged him in the court house yard at Nicholasville. While we are opposed to mob law, yet this punishment is what the brute should have received, and the citizens are to be congratulated on the job. Such fiendish assaults will never be stopped until the perpetrators are promptly executed, and the quicker the better.

WATER WORKS.

City Council Has Advertised for Bids, and Work Will be Pushed Ahead. No More Delay.

The City Council has advertised in the big trade journals of the East for bids on the water works franchise. These bids will be opened the first Saturday in March, and the lowest and best bidder will be awarded the franchise. It is the intention of the Council to bind the contractor so that it will be impossible to delay the work. Great care will be exercised in every detail of the matter, and it can now be safely said that work on the system will be commenced in the early spring. The members of the present Council were elected with the idea of getting this work done, and they are showing that they are equal to the occasion by buckling right down to business. This system is needed more than any other improvement the town could wish for, and now that the will of the people, expressed at the polls, is being carried out, there will be rejoicing in the heart of every public-spirited citizen in the town. As stated above, there will be no more delay in the matter, but the system will be put in right away, and it is believed that by the end of the year there will be as good a system in Lancaster as can be found in any town in the state. Let us all rise and sing the long-metre doxology.

A Serious Joke.

One night last week, Clate Anderson, the colored mail carrier, asked the clerk on No. 4 if he knew Mr. George Hardin, formerly of Lancaster and a mail clerk on the K. C. The clerk knew Mr. Hardin, of course, and was a friend of his, and in order to have a little fun, replied, "Yes, I know him. Did you know they put him in jail last night?" At this juncture the train pulled out, and Clate, having known George all his life, and being very fond of him, told several parties what the clerk on No. 4 had said. As bad news always spreads rapidly, it was soon all over town that Hardin had been arrested. When Hardin came out on his next run, he heard of the report, and to say that he was hot in the collar does not fully express it. Mr. Hardin was raised in Lancaster, and no man has a better reputation for honesty and uprightness. While no one here believed the report, and, in fact, many pronounced it a blanked lie, yet for fear someone might hear it who does not know Mr. Hardin, we publish this to show how the report originated. No one stands higher in the community than does Geo. Hardin, and the people of Lancaster will back him for anything he wants. He is a member of Lancaster Lodge, No. 104, F. & A. M., and a just and upright man and Mason, in every way. A joke is alright in its place, but this was stretching the blanket a little too far, although the clerk who did it was Hardin's friend and one of the best and oldest men in the service.

Midnight Scheme to Defraud.

Dentist to Councilman—"You fellows in the Council have got to do something to keep that Dentist Hobson out of Lancaster, he has gotten the people here so they won't pay any one over $7.50 for a set of teeth, and I can't make but $5.00 on each set at that price and can't make but four sets a day, and you fellows know I can't live on $20.00 a day in Lancaster. This Dentist Hobson makes the best set in the world for $7.50 and guarantees them for five years, and makes the best alloy fill for 75 cents, and unless you fellows in the Council do something we will have to reduce our prices and that would never do. It is true if we reduced our prices it would enable many poor people to have teeth who are unable to have work done at our present prices."

Councilman to Dentist—"I tell you that on Monday night, March 3rd, at the Council meeting we will start an ordinance, making Dentists who come here pay $50.00 per year, of course you fellows here in town will have to pay this but we will pay you fellows back, just as soon as we make Dentist Hobson quit coming here or pay us the $50.00 license. I believe this $50.00 license will make him quit here and then you fellows can get any price you want to for your work."

Dr. Hobson, Dentist, Richmond, Ky. Lancaster every second Monday.

Rural Free Delivery.

The following letter will be of interest to every person in Garrard county:

Louisville, Feb. 8, 1902.

Dear Louis:—I have just returned from Washington and think will have no difficulty in procuring Rural Mail Delivery for Garrard county. Thought you would be interested in this matter, hence write you. There's nothing too good for old Garrard. Yours truly, W. O. Bradley.

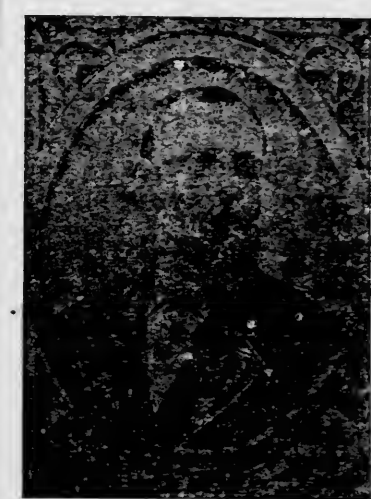

There is no doubt but that such service can be obtained, and if the people want it, they can with the able assistance of Gov. Bradley, have same established. It would be a great convenience to the people living out from the post offices, as their mail would be placed in a box at their front gates every day in the year, except Sunday, of course. It has been stated that this would keep many people from coming to the present post offices, but when it is considered that there is a post office every few miles in the county, it will be seen that this objection don't amount to much. THE RECORD would like to hear from its readers on the matter.

HIGGINBOTHAM.

After lingering in a critical condition for a week, Mr. John M. Higginbotham breathed his last about six o'clock Wednesday evening, the 6th. As was stated in last issue of THE RECORD, his death had been expected at any moment for several days before the end came. While he had never been considered in anything like a dangerous condition, yet his close friends were aware of the fact that he had been failing for some months, but they did not anticipate any immediate danger. He seldom complained, but his friends could tell that he was not well and lacked that vim and vigor so characteristic of the man. Mr. Higginbotham was one of the most prominent men in Central Kentucky, and was considered one of the safest of advisors and counselors in any matter of importance.

John M. Higginbotham was born in Garrard county, Kentucky, September 21, 1842, and was a son of William and Ellen Higginbotham. In 1896, he was married to Miss Emma Palmer, daughter of Mr. John M. Palmer, of this county. Following his honest convictions, as he always did, he entered the Confederate Army in 1861, enlisting in Morgan's command. We have frequently heard his comrades speak of his brave and gallant service as a soldier, and their testimony is

What he was always in the front ranks in every engagement, and was never known to shirk a duty, no matter how hazardous. At the close of the war, he returned home, went about his work and by strict attention to business soon had a good portion of this world's goods laid by.

In 1878 he was elected sheriff of Garrard county, being the first democrat elected to this office in this county since the war. His conduct as an official was complimented on all hands, and it is said by older citizens that the office was never conducted in a more business-like manner than when under his charge. He was re-elected as sheriff, served the second term, and could have had the office longer had he wanted it. He served two terms as a member of the City Council, and was as particular in handling the business of the people as though it were his own private affair. He has been a trustee for the Graded School for some time and was deeply interested in that institution's success.

In 1882 he was one of the leaders in organizing the Citizens National Bank, of this city, and was unanimously chosen as president of that flourishing institution every year since. As stated in the beginning of this article, his advice was considered by everyone as being perfectly fair to all concerned, and his judgment safe in every respect, and the excellent statements made by the bank are due largely to his sound wisdom in financial matters.

He located in Lancaster in 1879, and in 1883 built one of the largest and best store houses in the town. He soon opened a stock of hardware and implements, and has conducted a large and profitable business ever since. Mr. Higginbotham was a kind-hearted man and ever ready to help his friends in any manner that he could. He was a free giver to worthy charities, but made no parade over his good deeds. His death is keenly felt by a wide circle of friends and his place will be hard to fill. He was a member of the Christian church, at which the funeral was conducted Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock by Rev. Ellett and Rev. Allen R. Moore. The remains were followed to the Lancaster Cemetery by one of the longest processions of friends ever seen in Lancaster. He leaves a widow, one brother, Mr. George T. Higginbotham, of this county, and two sisters, Mrs. Shumate, of Danville, and Mrs. Ike Arnold, of Oklahoma.

[The picture from which the accompanying half-tone was made, was taken in 1878, but is yet a fair likeness.—Ed.]

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of the directors of The Citizens National Bank, of Lancaster, Ky., held Saturday, February 8th 1902, called by reason of the death of our esteemed President, J. M. Higginbotham, it was

RESOLVED, that in his death this bank has suffered an irreparable loss, and that each member of this institution feels severely the loss of a kind and true friend.

RESOLVED that this community has lost a citizen whose influence for truth, morality and christianity, will ever be felt.

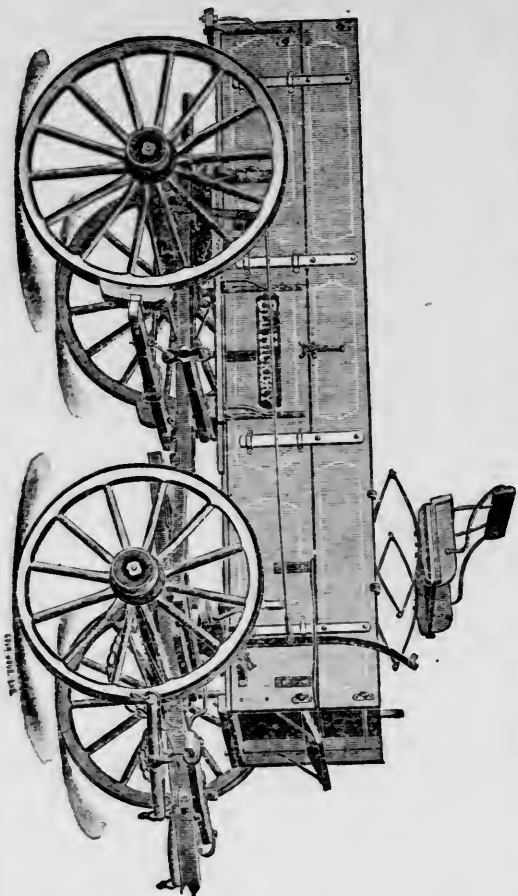

RESOLVED, that we extend our sincere condolence to his bereaved wife, brother and sisters, who now suffer by separation from an affectionate husband and kind brother, the absence of whose tender love and fatherly advice has caused an aching void that cannot be filled. The advice we would extend, is to emulate his virtues.

RESOLVED, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this institution, a copy be sent to his family and published in THE RECORD.

CENTRAL RECORD.

— An Independent, Local Newspaper. —
ISSUED WEEKLY.

LOUIS LANDRAM, Editor and Publisher.

Lancaster, Ky. Feb. 15th 1902.

THE Courier Journal says a jury in that city was easily satisfied a few days ago when it pronounced "not guilty" a homicide on his own testimony that he was too drunk to know what he was doing when he fired a revolver and killed his victim. The man was undoubtedly slain, and the act can hardly be termed an irresponsible and blameless accident. The disregard of human life by a drunken man is not to be lightly passed over. If there is anything short of criminality in a drunken man firing a revolver indiscriminately among bystanders it is hard to tell where it comes in. The leniency with which some juries look upon the careless destruction of life is shocking. A verdict of manslaughter, with a prison sentence, such as would have been imposed had the defendant been guilty of stealing a cow or a mule, would have shown more regard for the life that was so wantonly taken, and might have saved many lives.

THIRTY-SEVEN men, whose aggregate wealth reached the sum of $500,000, were invited to dine with P. A. B. Widener in Philadelphia last week. The feast is said to have been the most elaborate ever spread in America. This may have been true, but we will venture to say that the old skin-flints were so hampered by dyspepsia that they could not enjoy the meal. Rich old codgers like these may have their bountiful spreads, but we wouldn't give one ration of our good old cornbread and country ham for all the knickknacks the rich speculators (properly speaking, gamblers) can stack on their mahogany tables. Come to think of it, there's a whole lot of consolation in being poor, after all.

It is very noticeable that of late all the great countries of the earth are inclined to snuggle up pretty close to your Uncle Samuel, remarks the pa-

The long talked of bridge has been finished at last and is quite an ornament to our town.

The A. O. U. W. lodge at this place has received an invitation to attend a banquet at Ford on the 14th.

Mr. A. B. Estridge has returned from the city. He bought a large stock of goods while there and says he is going to sell them right.

Judges Turpin and Ford were here Saturday and took a look at the new bridge. We understand they will hold back nine-hundred dollars on account of the Bridge Company failing to comply with the contract.

It came under our observation recently and we are thoroughly convinced that a man without money is without friends. A man without much of this world's goods died a short time ago and there was scarcely enough at the grave to take the corpse out of the hearse. A rich man died soon afterwards and was buried at the same place. His remains were followed by a long procession and there was hardly standing room at the grave.

Will there be so much difference made in the world to come between the rich and the poor? (They'll not be in the same world hereafter, Butler—Ed.)

Mrs. Sallie Leavell, of Bryantville, was here Sunday to see her brother, Jack Adams, who is a very sick man.

Something That Will Do You Good.

For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, Croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—Camden (S. C.) Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the brassy cough of croup, which sounds like the children's death knell and it means death unless something is done quickly. Foley's Honey and Tar never fails to give instant relief and quickly cures the worst forms of croup. Mrs. P. L. Cordier, of Manning, Ky., writes: "My three year old girl had a severe case of croup; the doctor said she could not live. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar, the first dose gave quick relief and saved her life." Refuse substitutes. Sold by C. C. & J. E. Stormes. 1m

A Card. To THE PUBLIC—I have purchased an interest in the firm of Burnett & Co., at this place and earnestly ask the people of Garrard and surrounding counties for a share of their patronage. Having served the people of Garrard county for the last six years as chief deputy, under John M. Duncan, late County Clerk, I shall esteem it a great pleasure if you will permit me to continue to do so in the way of Gents Furnishings, Shoes and Dry Goods. I am located on the Public Square in the new Hotel block, where I shall be glad to have you call and inspect our stock. Very Respectfully, O. W. Shugars.

"Hello, 28!" "Well?" "Is this Conn's carriage shop?" "Yes." "Have you a good set of harness that you can sell cheap?" "Yes." "Have you some buggies on hand?" "Yes, a car load." "Can you shoe my horse?" "Yes, I will have Ned Burdett to shoe your horse, also your mare." "How about fixing my wagon?" "Send it down." "Well, can you fix my old cutting box?" "Of course I can. What else do you want to know?" "Can you repair my plow?" "Yes, I can, can you read?" "Then take the Central Record, which tells that Conn can fix and make anything from a bumble bee stinger to a steam engine, so send in your work and don't wait."

Polluted Wells. Polluted water is probably the foremost cause of disease on the farm. It is a great risk to use water from a dug well, for very few dug wells are free from pollution; and if they contain pure water to-day, it is possible—and always happening—they will be polluted to-morrow.—Dr. J. T. Hurty, in Indiana Farmer.

The old-fashioned well was a dug well with stone sides, and it was not known how to build any other. The modern well is bored, driven or clogged, and the results are much more satisfactory. There are thousands of stone wells throughout the country that have been in use many years and will undoubtedly continue to be for many years to come. During the winter time the danger from these wells is reduced to a minimum. In hot weather, when one needs the best and purest water, it is very apt to be at its worst. There are comparatively few wells that have proper covers. Many of them are merely loose boards that one can readily lift. We have yet to see half a dozen that were sufficiently tight that there would be no debris falling from the surface of the ground, and particularly a matter that is the least desirable. Few farmers actually realize the great risk they are taking in allowing their wells to become neglected. Bear in mind the statement made in the above clipping that the foremost cause of disease on the farm is from polluted wells, and consider with this that the doctor is in all probability correct.—Drovers' Journal.

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and dannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils nor nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains.

S. S. S. contains no potash or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment.

FARM & GARDEN

Joe Jordan shipped to Atlanta, Ga., last week, 52 head of mules which he bought in Boyle county at from $65 to $130 per head.

The next annual meeting of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association will be held at Louisville, Ky., Friday, April 11, 1902.

It is as difficult for a man to get out of a rut, once he gets into one, as it is to pull a heavily loaded wagon from a rut in a frozen country road.

Hog cholera is practically unknown in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, unless they were imported from the eastern states.

Dr. A. Jones, of Cornersville, Tenn., has lost six fine mules within the past few days. The deaths are supposed to have resulted from the animals eating silo feed.

The brood sow, after her pigs are a few days old, requires a good deal of rich food to keep her in condition and maintain a good flow of milk.

Colts from sires that are ridden, driven and worked are uniformly more tough and active than those from sires kept in the stables and fat, so says an exchange.

A Hoosier exchange truthfully remarks that a small bunch of sheep can be kept on any farm to an advantage, but on a poor farm they serve a double purpose. They enrich the soil and return an income.

This is an excellent time to do a little practical forestry work. Go through the timber and trim up the down timber, then cut out the dead trees and remove any live ones that are interfering with the growth of others.

Danville Advocate:—The following crops of tobacco were bought last week by Mr. E. P. Faulconer: From W. O. Williams, 10,000 lbs. at 7c; J. H. Henson, 4,000 lbs. at 6c; Neil Bros., 7,000 lbs. at 7c; A. W. McElfresh, 12,000 lbs. at 8c; G. W. Bradshaw, 18,000 lbs. at 6c; Jack Gover, 8,000 lbs. at 5c.

If there is any place about the farm or garden where one can be penny wise, pound foolish it is in getting poor or uncertain seeds. Bad seeds mean loss of time, money and opportunity, and waste of ground space. A man might buy a poor lot or piece of machinery and get rid of it, but poor seeds mean the loss of a season's opportunity.

Possibly the largest check given for the heavy staple was given J. S. Holland, of Saltillo, last week by Robertson & Co., of Corinth, Miss., for 220 bales of cotton. The check amounted to $8,309.99, 74 cents being the price per pound paid for the cotton. The cotton was shipped on the steamer Clyde to the company at Riverton, Ala., where it will be loaded on cars for eastern shipment.

It is quite common to hear a farmer say at the end of his business year, "I've spent a lot of money this year, but I can't see where it's gone to," or something to that effect. He has probably made a good crop and the money has gone out in dribs. A simple system of book-keeping would show him "where he is at." There is a deplorable lack of genuine business system among our farmers. If the farmer himself cannot spare the time,

DOUBT

LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.

Women who are yet to experience the trial of motherhood should post themselves and reason with modern intelligence. Theories based upon the conditions that surround your grandmothers or of the lower animal kingdom, should not be advanced. Pure ignorance, fashion and civilization has changed your mode of living, dress and thought. The modern mother need not suffer, yet she surely will if nature is left alone to mould the fetus and give successful issue of the living child. Mother's Friend is a softening and relaxing liniment, for external use shortly after a woman has herself pregnant, or as soon as fullness and discomfort with morning sickness is evident. It relieves the excruciating pain occasioned by the strain on the abdominal muscles. A bottle costs $1.00, and is sold by all druggists.

WHERE SHALL WE REST?

[The following poem was written by the late Gen. W. J. Landrum, back in the 50's. Having had occasion to make some copies recently, we reproduce it in THE RECORD.]

Changeless, noiseless, relentless Time! We chant thy victories in rhyme: A conqueror whose unflinching blows, Fall thick alike on friends and foes; Whose strides encompass land and sea; Whose limit is eternity: Move on thy triumphs are secure— Thy future safe—thy power sure.

Fortune's tide with varying phase, Flows on, uncertain as the days Of man's existence; boundless maze! Where expectation's eager gaze Vainly imagines jewels rare, Or costly gems, or beauty fair; Or wealth or honor, fame or power, Will there be found to cheer the hour When all is gloom and doubt and fear, And sadness reigns supremely, where Joy and contentment flourish long, And virtue triumphed over wrong.

More gorgeous than the opening day, When stretching o'er the mighty way, Triumphant sun-light's dazzling rays Unfold fresh beauties to our gaze, While nature stands enrobed in light, Adding new splendor to the sight— Are shadows which vain man pursues, In search of joys, that make him lose The substance, which alone can give Content to hearts that for it strive— Phantoms that rise to lure him on To fancied bliss, and pleasures flown.

In life's vast maze, we wandered tread, And though our steps to failures lead, Still, expectation's siren voice Bids hope yet linger and rejoice: That word whose magic force retains, In every heart where virtue reigns, A power unlimited yet mild, Controlling nature's gentlest child: And, by its captivating charms, Tempting the brave with sturdy arms, To hazard fortune, venture life, By mingling in the deadly strife— Seeking for fame in conflicts dire, Till their last lingering hopes expire, Boundless ambition! thy false glare Paints all things lovely—all things fair.

The Iris in the morning storm, With varied tints, and beautiful form, And old o'er, in majesty sublime— "Fit emblem of departing time," Is not more fleeting than the show, The worldly wisdom—all we know— And all the pleasure man enjoys, Sporting with fame's illusive toys.

The search for wealth—the thirst for fame— The empty honors of a name— Are bubbles floating on the tide Of life's vast ocean spreading wide, That burst and vanish from our gaze Like drops of dew before the rays Of heat refracted from the sun: 'Tis thus the work of life's begun And ended, ere we learn the truth, That virtue's ways begin with youth, That happiness is only found Where hearts with love and truth abound.

The lover who in blissful dreams, Wanders along life's pleasant streams, Mingling his sports with joy and mirth, Whiles living in a heav'n on earth, Wakes not more certainly to find, The image that possessed his mind, Shorn of beauty—devoid of form, Than he, who, heedless of the storm That rages with unbroken force— Urges his powers beyond the course; Which nature's providential care Suggests to man, to calm his fear: Hoping to find enjoyments rare, When all proves false instead of fair. Fleeting and vain, the world's great charms Will only cause him fresh alarms.

The world moves on with mighty pace, Labor and toil assume the place Of sloth and vice—partners in crime, Who seek the waste of precious time— Moments too sacred to be lost, When reason bids us make the most Of every hour and every day, Vouchsafed by God, to glid the way To future realms of peace and joy, Treasured in heav'n without alloy.

The silver clouds that deck the sky, And ride upon the trade-winds high, With golden fringe and violet hues, Whose beauties oft awake my Muse— Sail less light in their airy plane, Than trifles floating through the brain: Painting life's hopes in colors bright, That fade ere yet they see the light.

A bud—a blossom—then a flower, Whose beauty withers in an hour, Vain man comes forth and breathes and acts In the great drama of life's facts— Fickle, tho' striving to be true, He lives on, giving naught that's due To those whose love in evil's day, Showered bright roses o'er his way, When troubles came with rapid pace, And sorrows staled him in the face.

Onward, he bends his tottering limbs; Where shall he rest and whither roam? When shall his voice in joyful hymns, Sing praises in his last—best home? Th' immortal soul in this frail clay, Finds no rest save that peace of mind, That gives content and points the way To all that's good in human-kind.

Then, we shall rest by virtue's streams, Where never-fading flowers bloom, Diffusing fragrance's golden beams— Shedding rich fragrance o'er the tomb.

The New York Chamber of Commerce also has adopted a memorial to Congress asking concessions to Cuba. The House leaders are determined, however, to grant no favors.

The session of the Legislature was half over Monday, and only one bill has passed both houses. There are 600 bills pending and a hundred or more are in prospect. These have resulted in congesting the committees and delaying action. It is believed, however, that all the important bills will be passed in the remaining thirty days. The light on the State Capitol Bill will begin in the House this week. Its friends believe it will pass the House. The Senate is favorable to a new Capitol.

Ingersoll and Infidelity.

From the Christian Guide we copy the following list of eloquence and truth from Ex-Gov. Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee, one of the greatest lecturers on the American platform, is worthy of a wide circulation, and we publish it with pleasure for our readers:

"I sat in the great theater in the national capital. It was thronged with youth and beauty, old age and wisdom. I saw a man, the image of his God, stand upon the stage, and I heard him speak. His gestures were the perfection of grace, his voice was music, and his language was more beautiful than any I had ever heard from mortal lips. He painted picture after picture of pleasures and joys, and sympathies of home. He enthroned love and preached the gospel of humanity like an angel. Then I saw him dip his brush into the ink of mortal blackness and blot out the beautiful picture he had painted. I saw him stab love dead at his feet. I saw him blot out stars and the sun, and leave humanity and the earth in eternal darkness and eternal death. I saw him, like the serpent of old, wound himself into the paradise of human hearts, and by his seductive eloquence and subtle devices of sophistry, inject his fatal venom, under whose blight its flowers faded, its music was hushed, its sunshine was darkened, and its soul was left a desert waste with the new-made graves of faith and hope. I saw him like a lawless and erratic meteor, without orbit, sweep across the intellectual sky, brilliant only in its self-consuming fire, generated by friction with the indestructible and eternal truths of God. "That man was the archangel of infidelity, and I said: How true is holy writ, which declares that the fool has said in his heart, 'There is no God.' Tell me not, O infidel, there is no God, no heaven, no hell? Tell me not, O infidel, there is no risen Christ! What intelligence less than God's could fashion the human body, that drives those throbbing engines of the human heart, sending the crimson stream of life bounding through every vein and artery? Whence and what, if not God, is this mystery we call 'mind'? What is it that thinks, and feels, and plans, and acts, O, who can deny the divinity that stirs within us? God is everywhere and in everything. His mystery is in every bud, and blossom, and leaf, and tree; in every rock, and hill, and mountain; in every spring, and rivulet, and river. The rustle of his wings is in every zephyr, his might is in every tempest. He dwells in the dark pavilion of every storm cloud. The lightning is his messenger, and the thunder is his voice. His awful tread is in every earthquake and on every angry ocean. The heavens above us teem with his myriads of shining whiteness—the universe or solar systems whose wheeling orbs course the crystal dread halls of eternity, the glory and power and dominion of the all-wise, omnipotent, and eternal God."

HORTICULTURAL HINTS.

"Any old thing" will not do in these days—the package must be neat, clean and attractive. If you wish to transplant trees this fall it will be best to wait till the leaves have fallen.

The raspberry and blackberry bushes should have the old wood cut out before being laid down for the winter.

The freight, cartage and package on poorly packed fruit, or that which is of poor quality, cost as much as in the case of well packed fruit and that of good quality. The proceeds are more on the latter, hence the profit is greater.

When caring for the vegetables do not forget the house plants that may need repotting or that must be taken from out-of-doors to a warmer place—if the good wife or daughter sees to this you see that she has a "lift" on the heavy part, getting the soil ready and carrying the plants in.—Farmers' Voice.

How to Cure a Itchy Horse.

When a horse balks, no matter how badly he sulks or how ugly he is, do not beat him, do not throw sand in his ears; don't use a rope on his front legs, or even burn straw under him. Quietly go and pat him on the head a moment; take a hammer, or even pick up a stone in the street; tell the driver to sit still, take the reins and hold them quietly while you lift up either front foot. Give each nail a light tap, and a good smart tap on the frog; drop his foot quickly, and then chirp to him to go. In 99 cases out of 100 the horse will go right along about his business, but the driver must keep his lines taut and not pull or jerk him back.—John Haines, in Farm and Home.
